This detective came at once to Melcourne, and made himself known to Chiss of Folice Standish, who ailed him considerably as to the generable I bearines of his work. The gentleman from Scotland Yard spent sometime in this city, interviewing various people who knew something of Sir Rozer, alias Tom Castro. He has been here upward of two years, and has secured a large amount of information concerning Sir Royer and his career in this country. The people hereabout are not delicate in their choice of occupations, and turn their way. But even these pools himself the trown in their way. But even these pools himself to Castro followed. The first that we knew of this ro here was during a brief engagement as sailor before the mast on the boasting vesses of this port. But be did not remain here long. He sartled off into the interior, and soon became engaged as stock rider. This business is very conflictant, and subjects its followers to the severest uncourse. A stock rider is furnished with a norse, and is required to scour a large pirtion of the country in the interior, in search of cattle that have strayed or been stoian. His tips occupy often times than the work and the many energy and the nation of the country in the interior, and serveres two outers. A stock rider is furnished with a norse, and

This is the bith of Tom Castro's work in this region. He had boarded with a somewhat indigent family during his labor as a slaughterer, and to them let out at times scraps of his previous history in the coincides, which caused them to be summoned to Landon directly Tom Castro had laid claim to the time of Sir koger Tichborne. They have returned to this country, and are creating considerable comment by their sires and self-importance.

He found much difficult in securching out the people whom he wanted to find, but in the mini was successful, and, as is believed here, improved his chances for establishing his identity. He departed bence, and visited South Americand other quarters of the globe. During his travels he first wit more exciting adventures than he had experienced during his sojourn in Australia. An hier of the opposition he met, and the he experienced, may be gleaned from the fact that on one occasion when on the way to a south American port, the vessel in which he was a passenger was wrecked off the coast of Brazil, and none saved to tell the story but this man Castro, whom so many in England wished dead. At another tive, while travelling in the interior, he had occasion to cross the country, but missed the conveyance in which he had taken passage by some five minutes, and was consequently left behind. That conveyance was stopped by savages, the antire party mardered and robbed, and the property confiscated.

Sir Roger, alias Castro, returned to England with documentary evidence of his identity, and prepared to relate the allecations of his opponents that he is a cheat and an siventurer.

I am just told by Chief of Polies Standish that nucli agitation pervades the circles of the aristoracy in London, caused by the evidence which is Waile hers he was much like every one else in the colonies, rough in speech and manner—a person set most ordinary character.

AN ENGLISH BARONET WAS FOUND among the gold mines of Bendigo quietly earning by the most arduous labor his scantly living. He had come to the constry when quiet young, had grown up smid its wilds, married an uncouth, lillerate woman, and returned to the home of his youth to make a Beronet of himself, a hady of his unpolished wife, and prospective aristocrats of his two itstile savages. It was not far from him that a itungarian Count labored. He often comes to towa, and I have frequently spoken with aim. He is a fine-looking man, with much dignity about him, and considerably polished, despite his rough exterior. Many years ago the estates belonging to his father were confacested by the Government, and the old Count sent into exile, where he died. Now, after all these years, the Government has restored the estates and utile, with the accruing interest during the beriod through which the Government was the custodian of the property. The Count receives his title in every-day life nere, and is much courted when he comes to the city; but it is so infatoated with gold-mining that he positively recurses the title in the positively recursed to give it up, and works on from day to day, earning but a scanty pittance, though his remit ances from his estate are large. earning but a scanty pittance, though his rem tances from his estate are large. FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

Tuesday, Jan. 27-P. M.-The chief feature of he Stock Exchange to-day was the extreme dulness of the various departments. Anticipating a continuation of this state of affairs at least for the present, the to adjourn over from Saturday afternoon, July 1, so Wednesday morning, July 5. Tuesday will be the national holiday, and this decision, in which the Gold Room acquiesced, renders Monday a practical one. The railway share market has presented few features of interest to-day, the volume of business eing small. During the morning prices were well sustained under the rise in Lake Shore to 102, but after the adjournment of the first call the advance was lost, and prices receded about 1/2 20 cent. all around. Later a steady tone was noted until about 2 P. M., when the intensity of the duliness was partially relieved by a sharp break to 1071% in Lake Shore, which has been to-day break to 107% in Lake Shore, which has been to-day the test lever in the market, so eculation hinging main that americally related to the test lever in the market, so eculation hinging main that americal the states access. The other search went off in sympathy, but when the leader was railed the remainder of the list also reacted. The leading features were the mainly prominent list, Hannibal and St. Joseph shares submitting to their usual eccentric freaks. Western Union of the miscellaneous list was lower, the coal stocks being weak under continued pressure to sell. The general market wound up tame and steady.

The gold premium took additional attempth to day, and sold at 112% 2112%; the rise as against 112% 2112% yesterday being occasioned by the more extended export demand; the shipments to day being $025,000 by the Silesia from this port, and $150,000 by the Tripoli from Bosten. The roport that some three-quarters of a million would go out by to-morrow's steamers sustained the price at the close, the final quotation resting at 112% 212%. The lending rates were 1 and 2 cent. for carrying, and flat 1, 2, and 8 pcent. for borrowing. The Treasury disbursed $1.337,000 in July coin interest, a total of $5.37,000. This extraordinary prevalence of small-pox over various parts of the globe, especially in countries wherevaccination has long been efficiently practised; its orcurrence in its most fatal form in persons who gaveevidences of having heen well vaccinated, and the remarkable susceptibility of people of all ages tor successful revaccination, are new facts in the history of this pestilence which must lead to a rein vostigation of the whole subject of vaccination, and of its claims as aprotecting agent. There can be no coubt that there is a growing skepticism in the public mind as to the 1504 value of vaccination, and this skepticism has been much sirrengthered by the repeated occurrence of small pox during the past vear in nersons who were precal profession, heen properly vaccinated. But the medidents of contagions disease, hold from the dath of
